REGIONAL AHEC
AREA HEALTH EDUCATION CENTER

In affiliation with Duke University Medical Center
Part of the NC AHEC Program

Who Should Attend?

Registered nurses, pharmacists, dietitians, clinical psychologists, occupational therapists, optometrists, physical therapists, physicians, physician assistants, exercise physiologists (certified ACSM), podiatrists, and health care professionals with a master's degrees or higher in social work who are interested in learning more about diabetes and sitting for the certification exam to become Certified Diabetic Educators®. According to the NCBDE a "CDE® is a medical/health care professional who possesses comprehensive knowledge of and experience in diabetes management, pre-diabetes, and diabetes prevention. A CDE® promotes self-management to achieve individualized behavior and treatment goals that optimize healthy outcomes." Certification is valid for a period of five years.

Who Qualifies to Take the Exam?

Individuals who have job responsibilities that include the direct provision of diabetes self-management education qualify to take the exam. For specific information about eligibility please visit the NCBDE website at www.ncbde.org. To be eligible to sit for an exam, the application deadline is March 15, 2015. The examination is offered through computer testing at over 170 sites throughout the United States.

Objectives

Upon completion of this knowledge-based program, participants will be able to:

- Prepare to take the certification exam;
- Assess learning and self-care behaviors;
- Examine the psycho-socioeconomic and mental health issues;
- Identify strategies for enhancing collaboration, compliance, and counseling;
- Describe complications of non-compliance: chronic and acute;
- Review special documentation requirements;
- Review pharmacologic management;
- Discuss implications for program development and management; and
- Review principles of nutrition and ADA guidelines.
